Surfing's origins date back thousands of years, with ancient Polynesian cultures developing early forms of wave riding. However, the modern evolution of surfboards began in the early 20th century, marked by innovations in materials and design. In the 1920s and 1930s, surfboards were primarily crafted from solid wood, often made of redwood, koa, or balsa. These early boards were hefty, sometimes weighing over 100 pounds, but their craftsmanship reflected a blend of artistry and functionality.

The Post-War Boom: The Rise of the Shortboard Revolution

Post-World War II, surfboard design experienced significant changes, fueled by technological advances and the burgeoning popularity of surfing in California and Hawaii. The 1950s and 1960s saw the emergence of lightweight polyurethane foam cores covered with fiberglass, revolutionizing the sport. These innovations led to the creation of iconic shapes such as the longboard, with its rounded nose and gentle curves, and the early shortboards, which were more agile and maneuverable.
